Government Notice

NURSES

On the 30th November, 1953 after a number of negotiating meetings with the Nigeria Union of Nurses Government made a statement to the Press in connection with the dispute between it and the Union to the effect that it was prepared to make new modifications to the Nurses' Salary Scales as appeared to be justified in the light of the representations made by the Union but that, unfortunately, the Union had refused to consider any solution which did not, in effect, concede their claim that the salaries of ALL nurses should be increased. It was stated that Government could not agree to this because the Union had not at any stage of the negotiations given satisfactory evidence that any real anomaly existed between the salary scales for nurses and those of Government servants.

2. Since the 30th November negotiations have been continued with the Union and two further meetings have been held. At the second meeting held on the 28th December, disagreement was recorded on the first two main items in the Union's claims, viz.

(a) that a probationer nurse on qualifying should proceed from £[illegible] to the point £190 in Scale N1 instead of from £140 to £[illegible] as at present. The Union originally claimed an entry point of £254 but subsequently reduced this to £210 and then to £190. Government is prepared to raise the entry point to £180 and is satisfied that this constitutes a very considerable concession in relation to the equivalent point for other Government servants of equivalent status, professional training, and educational qualifications in comparable scales who still remain at £1[illegible]. The offer represents three additional increments on qualifying and is the maximum concession which Government is prepared to make. The Union did not decline this offer outright at the meeting on the 28th December and was prepared to consider it in the light of the decision by Government on its second main item.

(b) that the higher initial entry point for a qualified nurse should be accompanied by a related upward revision of salaries for all staff nurses at present in the Service, either within the shortened Scale N1 or within a completely new scale, to be arrived at by merging the present scales N1 and N2 into a through scale. The claim for a general increase of the salaries of all [illegible] nurses consequent on raising the initial point of entry would be contrary to statements of policy made in the Legislature and constantly repeated by Government representatives in negotiations with Trade Unions and in Whitley Councils. This could NOT possibly be conceded even if the Union ultimately were to agree to the entry point of £180.

4. Government informed the Union at the meeting of the 28th December that was prepared to negotiate on the extension of Scale N1 and Scale N3 to higher maximum salaries than at present, in addition to the offer of an initial salary of £180, but the Union made it clear that it was not prepared to continue negotiations on these two points unless the principle of higher salaries for all nurses were accepted or, alternatively, unless a completely revised scale of salaries were adopted for Nurses which would have the effect of a general revision of salaries. No case has been made out for a general revision of salaries for nurses and Government is, therefore, unable to agree to either of those two claims by the Union.

5. In spite of the disagreements recorded is still open to the Union to negotiate with the Government on the bases started in paragraph 4 above. In the event of the Union deciding to call a strike in consequence of the failure to reach agreement then it is the duty of Government to remind all nurses in Government Service of their responsibility for the health and safety of the general public and to warn them that if they participate in such a strike, which Government considers unjustified and irresponsible, they will render themselves liable to be dismissed from the Service without formality.
