African became Probation Officer In Rhodesia

The first African to be made a Probation Officer in Southern Rhodesia has recently been appointed.

He is thirty years old, Ngnai H. Maki, who was born near Bulawayo. He has been appointed as Assistant Probation Officer to deal with African juvenile delinquents.

Mr. Maki has just completed a three-year course following which he was generally, and including child psychology, at the Jan Hofmeyr School, Johannesburg.

He was educated at the Hope Fountain Training school Bulawayo, and finished his schooling at Tiger Kloof Training School Cape Province, where he was and as a teacher. Mr. Ngnai was teaching at Masingwane Govt. School before joining the Jan Hofmeyr School.

London Big Ben Relaxes

Met by public eye and ever recently, Big Ben, the Commonwealth's most famous clock, has been allowed for some hours to relax on Monday.

Big Ben achieves the distinction of a Leader to himself in Sunday's Times. "When Members of Parliament say the newspaper, "wrote however like anxious fairies over the bank they were assumed by the Chief Lord of Woudes and Forests (now called practically Minister of Works) that this child of the craftsman's art would grow up to be a noble clock, indeed a king of clocks, the biggest and best in the world, the gods had official prophesy come more nearly true.

The Times adds "an astro-nomer Royal in his own day set the seal of his success. The late Sir Frank Dyson reported that in one year the greatest error had been only slightly more than a second and that on only two days the error had even passed the second mark." The remarkable accuracy has been safeguarded by a stable device. A tray was fixed half-way the pendulum and when the first lagged over or slightly a half-penny or penny was placed on the tray. The pendulum then moved a shade more quickly and so gradually brought the spot back to time. Imprecision leading to gain, was corrected by removing the coin.

Eclipse Of The Sun
