Lagos Chiefs Tangle Repeats History

(CASE OF ESUGBAYI ELEKO CITED)

The Oba of Lagos, with her misfortune of political disabilities, is learnt to be involved in a whirlwind of controversy irrespective of global magnitude. Under the law of Lagos, authority takes a very firm stand against such native laws and customs as are inconsistent with the moves by Obas. Any native custom or ceremony that violates the law of Lagos, will be repealed. Consider a line - round of the obas of Lagos themselves, can only bring about misery, unrest and disorder among the indigenous community of the Federal Capital.

If the present dispute is allowed to go out of hand, history would be repeating itself in many ways in Lagos.

There are several history like those of nature, a re no drama, irreparable. At any rate, I would prefer to come nearer home. In the last three quarters of the century, no Oba of Lagos had bad to face series of trouble from many quarters as did the late Esugbayi Eleko. But, paradoxically as it may appear the ill-advised step of the "Eleko" as "uncap" and depose the Asogbon being the Ashogbon of Lagos in 1913 marked the beginning of his trouble.

OBA ADELE OF LAGOS

(Hewants to depose 5 Lagos chiefs)

Of the three or four acts of omission and commission with which the five chiefs in the present case been charged. I would like to examine only and as briefly as possible. That is the non-attendance at Ose Iga, which a writer has described as a pagan rite.

Originally, Ose Iga was a weekly or fortnightly assembly of the Obas of Lagos and his Chiefs at which current problems and state are discussed. No Oba could act without the collective advise of his Chiefs as given at the meeting invariably, an element of paganism was introduced into the opening and closing ceremonies by the fact that normally, an Oba brings to Iga Idemilim, the religion he professes. If he worships Sango, Ila, Esu or Egungun, the paraphernalia and physical objects of any of these gods would be prominent in Iga. But in his reign, No Oba is bound to follow and propagate the religion of his predecessor. Thus the late Ibiukunle Akintoye, a Christian Oba, would not conduct his Ose Iga in the way of his predecessor, Esugbayi Eleko did. There was nothing repugnant about those meetings. Now that we have a Muslim Oba, an Ahmadiyya Muslim for that matter, one would expect to find a completely different picture. It is a picture that is far from being heathenish. This Ose Iga must be completely devoid of heathenism.

Lagos Chiefs Tangle Repeats History

(C/S: OF ESUGBAYI ELEKO CITED)

Iga Idunganran I repeated like the State House, at the moment, has no religion of its own. It take the colour and stamp of the current occupier. What therefore should obtain at the Igba at the moment is Muslim rites and there can be no objection to such rites from any section of the chieftaincy family houses in Lagos, since practically all of them have discarded heathenism.

We have heard and read about the Native Law and Custom governing appointment and/or deposition of Chiefs in Lagos. In fact, the move now being taken by the Ministry for Lagos Affairs over the present dispute is to ascertain what those laws and customs are.

The issue is not as difficult as all that. No Oba can depose a Chief. The worst he can do is to ask him not to come to Igba and participate in the deliberations and functions in the Igba Idunganran. The reason is that a Lagos Chief is not made by the Oba, but his Chieftaincy family. He is the creation of their joint and collective action. The Oba is to a chief who ever so presented to him as chief from a particular house. But whereas the Oba cannot strike and dismiss a chief it is the Chiefs who can make and unmake an Oba of Lagos. The Chiefs unanimously reject any candidate put forward by the ruling houses but they can depose an Oba for acts calculated to jeopardise the peace and prosperity of his subjects. And this can be done at any time by a simple majority of the chiefs in a special conclave. This is native law and customs. The Oba, by native laws and customs belongs to the people. And the Chiefs, being the accredited and traditional leaders of the people, have the power to make and unmake.

I hope by now, the position of Lagos Chiefs in relation to the Oba of Lagos is clear. They are, first and foremost, the heads of their families and lastly the Oba's counsellors. If for one reason or the other the Oba refuses to have their counsel, that would be his business. But the more refusal to have them in his court cannot invalidate their position as heads of their respective chieftaincy families. In law, their position is recognised, whether or not they choose line up with the Oba.

In the last few days, enough has been revealed by the Chiefs concerned to convince the Ministry for Lagos affairs that the move to "unseat" them was influenced by political consideration and, in or two cases personal funds as well. Now question is whether the men of the Ministry can allow themselves to be used as tools to realise sordid political ends. From the attitude so far displayed, it is gratifying to note, at least, for the time being, that they keep an open mind in the matter.

The alleged meeting of certain chiefs at which decision about withdrawal of recognition was reached was a flagrant breach of native law and customs, if ever it was held! Every Chief of Lagos functions in his own right. He is not subordinate or responsible to one or a group of chiefs. He owes his public status to members of his family who appointed him their head.
