DIVORCE SUIT AGAINST BARRISTER.

OBAFEMI versus OBAFEMI.

Wife alleges she was turned out to make room for Paramour.

In the Supreme Court of Nigeria on Tuesday the 9th day of October, 1928, before His Honour the Chief Justice Sir Ralph M. Combe, Kt., a petition for dissolution of marriage and for such further and other orders as may be meet was argued at the instance of Mrs. Matilda Omope Obafemi, wife of Mr. Charles Harrison Obafemi, Barrister-at-Law.

The case was not defended.

The Petitioner, Mrs. Matilda Omope Obafemi who was Represented by Mr. S. Ayodele Thomas, (Inter L.L.B., London) Barrister-at-Law, said in her evidence that she was married to Mr. Obafemi the Respondent on the 29th April, 1919, at Christ Church, Lagos, and that he always beat her and inflicted a wound on her left wrist. The Petitioner stated further that on one occasion she had to be turned out of the house by Respondent and her room locked up for six good months during this period she had to stay with one Mr. Mends Cole, and that the Respondent did live with another woman by name Ellen Eyinle Olaside in the same house. Mr. Mends Cole a popular jester and comedian who, on this occasion styles himself "Commission Agent" gave evidence at the instance of the Petitioner but his evidence was so diametrically opposed to, or at variance with that of the Petitioner that it was thought he would receive his "call fee" from the Respondent. The case was immediately adjourned from the next morning at 9 a.m. in favour of the Petitioner for further evidence to corroborate her own.

On Wednesday morning as the Petitioner was unable to produce any more witness to support her allegations Mr. Thomas who represented her explained to the Court the difficulty involved in getting witnesses in a case of this nature and that the Petitioner is a quiet woman going, non complaining to anybody besides Mr. Mendis Cele whom she stayed with until about two months ago when she left the house.

His Honour the Chief Justice expressed satisfaction with the evidence placed before him and the Petitioner was granted a Decree Nisi with costs against the Respondent.

We congratulate the Counsel Mr. S. Ayodele Thomas on this case.
