BBC Keeps Pace With News From Africa

Name an English-speaking African statesman-and his voice has been heard in FOCUS ON AFRICA! FOCUS ON AFRICA is the BBC African Service's up-to-the minite political programme dealing exclusively with African affairs. It provides a detailed background to the news from Africa, in the form of interviews discussion, commentary and on-the spot recordings FOCUS ON AFRICA is geared to bring listeners comment on ths very latest news from Africa. For some years this programme has been broadcast three times a week but nowadays there's more new from Africa than ever before, so to keep pace the BBC has decided to increase the number of editions. From the begining of October FOCUS ON AFRICA will be broadcast five days a week by the BBC African Service on Moncays Tuesdays, Wednesdays Thursday and Fridays.

FOCUS ON AERICA, has interviewed leading statesmen and personalities from nearly all Africa's independent countries, either in their own capitals or on their visits to London In the first half of 1964, distinguished statesmen and diplomats whose voice were ueard in FOCUS ON AFRICA included Prime Minister Jomo Kenyatta of Kenya, Prime Minister Alhaji Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa of Nigeria,

President Houphouet Biogny of the Ivory Coast, Prime Minister Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia. Prime Minister Albert Margai of Sierra Leone, Prime Minister Milton Obote of Uganda, Prime Minister David Jawara of the Gambia.

President Julius Nyrere of the United Republic of Tanganyika and Zanzibar and Robert Gardiner of Ghana, Secretary-General of the Economic Commission for Africa. During the last Commonwealth Prime Ministers' Conference in London special editions of FOCUS ON AFRICA were produced with reports on the progress of Conference and interviews with the Prime Ministers taking part. Also in July Keith Carter of the BBC flew to Cairo to send back special reports on the Organisation of African Unity Summit meeting. A special correspondent will fly to New York for the next United Nations General Assembly Session, and his reports will appear regularly in FOCUS OF AFRICA.

FOCUS ON AFRICA begins with the BBC's special daily new bulletin NEWS OF THE AFRICAN WORLD. This bulletin prepared in the BBC Overseas newsroom in London keeps listeners up-to date with the latest news from every part of the Continent of Africa.

FOCUS ON AFRICA will continue to bring reports from correspondents in Africa and coment from journalists and experts on African affairs in London The BBC's own corres—pondents in Africa—Angus Macdermid in West Africa Ronald Robson in Central Africa, David Willey in East Africa Noel Clark in North Africa-are regular contributors In addition FOCUS ON AFRICA gets regular reports from Clyde Sanger in Nairobi, Kenya Bill Saidi in Lusaka, Zambia Eileen Haddon in Salisbury, Southern Rhodesia, Walter Schwarz in Lagos, Nigeria and many others. Regular reports come from other parts of the world too from United Nations Headquarers in New York, and from Brussels where Louis Joos keeps his eye on Common Market Developmen is for FOCUS ON AFRIA

In London many famous journalists and political commentators take part in FOCUS ON AFRICA. Among them Colin Legum of the OBSERVER Patrick Keatley of the GUARDIAN, John Hatch of the NEW STATESMAN, Richard Kershaw of AFRICA 1964, David Williams, editor of WEST AFRICA, and Keith Kyle freelance journalist and broadcaster.

And in London too, is FOCUS ON AFRICA's own team of interviewers and narrators - DENNIS PETERS from The Gambia: Zachary Haule from Tanganyika: ERNEST FORSTER FROM SIERRA Leone: Duncan Kibuchi from Kenya.

Now with five editions every week FOCUS ON AFRICA will be able to give increased coverage to political affairs Africa From October, listeners can keep up-to-date with African affairs throughout the week by tuning regularly to FOCUS ON AFRICA

Listeners in West Africa can hear FOCUS ON AFRICA on Mondays to Fridays at 11.15 GMT on 21 17 and 15 megcycles in the 13 16 and 19 metre bands.
