Attack On Human Want Is Major Goal Of Johnson Programme

WASHINGTON.—President Johnson's domestic programme—like much of his international programme—strongly reflects the ideal of eradicating poverty wherever it may exist.

This includes "pockets of poverty" in the United States, which in past years has moved to new heights of economic strength and prosperity and yet—for reasons of the mere passage of time and rapid technological progress—has long struggled with a paradox. It is that some geographical regions and human groups have not shared in the rising affluence.

This, to Mr. Johnson, is patently illogical, wasteful, and unworthy of that kind of a progressive administration he plans to lead.

It is therefore a cornerstone of his program to attack "pocket of poverty" in the United States no less than in the world.

That, in fact, is what he has added to the Kennedy proposals before Congress and addition which puts the Johnson Program in a straight line of succession to the new deal, the fair deal and the new frontier of his democratic predecessors in office.

But rather than simply attaching a name to it, Mr. Johnson proposes specifics and details.

Since it carries beyond the social philosophy of Roosevelt, Truman and Kennedy, it is impossible to imagine that the Johnson plan would not become one of the most heatedly debated issues in election campaign this fall. The issue of government involvement in human affairs has long been a main bone of contention between the major groups in both parties.

But President Johnson's motive is neither simple politics nor strictly materialistic economics. Perhaps his most fervent and impressive plea was for passage of the civil rights bill.

Disarmament Examined In New Booklet

LONDON—The progress made in disarmament negotiations so far, and the chances of reaching agreement on this vital issue, are analysed in a booklet prepared by the British Foreign Office and published in London this week:

Entitled "The Key to Disarmament," the booklet is being made available throughout the world.

Noting that the partial nuclear test ban treaty has given rise to hopes that old difficulties may now be overcome in an atmosphere of better mutual understanding, the publication examines the prospects for disarmament.

Disarmament it says, is not only the most complex of all international problems; progress on it must depend on parallel advance in solving outstanding political problems, and the key to agreement is the building up of confidence between nations.

Current Western and Russian disarmament plans are summarised, and there is a detailed chronology of main developments in the fields of disarmament and banning nuclear tests.

The destructive power of nuclear weapons is so great that both sides have almost certainly, ruled out major wars as an instrument of policy.

It stresses that the only real safeguard against "cheating" in which a power could gain significant military superiority by secretly rearming, is international inspection or verification to make sure that any disarmament agreement is carried out by all.

New Secretary-General Of Council Of Europe

LONDON—Mr. Peter Smithers, M.P., Parliamentary Under Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, was yesterday, Wednesday, elected Secretary General of the 17 nation Council of Europe.

Mr. Smithers, who is 50, succeeds Signor Ledovico Benvenuti of Italy who retired last year. He is the first Briton ever to be appointed to the post and in the second ballot he won 75 votes—then above the required majority.
