About Trade Fair:

Made In Hong Kong...

(By A Special Contributor)

Have you, for instance, ever used a power-driven swizzle stick to take the bubbles out of the after-work drink? The size of a pocket torch, and battery operated these aids to good living are finding a ready market in many parts of the world.

A powerful little motor rotates a nine-inch metal shaft that has two metal discs on the end. The machine can also be used for mixing drinks and beating eggs.

Students of anatomy can take their pick from two products that have just come on to the market.

Made of plastic and designed to appeal to children of all ages are Hong Kong's famous dolls whose curves and dress sense put even the glossiests magazine pictures to shame. As a grim reminder that beauty is only skin deep after all, there is a scale model of the human body complete with removable heart.

In the past, perhaps, the lady was not for burning. Now she frequently is. Hong Kong candlemakers are producing a wide range of Chinese goddess figurines in wax, each guaranteed to give a bright, smokeless light for at least five hours. They come in bright colours that give the appearance of jade and soapstone.

For the mathematically-minded who fined it inconvenient to carry an abacus there is the lightning calculalator, a pocket-size machanical wizard that can add and subtract to six figures.

It is especially useful for totalling bills in decimal coinage.

Also for the traveller is the portable clothes-line, which looks like and is about the same size as a yo-yo. The line unwinds and is re-reeled in exactly the same way as a builder's steel tape measure, and is the perfect answer when a drip-dry shirt has to be hung in a hotel room or other confined space.

Hon Kong is already well known for its competitive prices and if local manufacturers have their way the Colony will soon be equally famous for its ingenuity. The slogan has become: If there's a use for it - well make it.

It Is A Goal!

England goalkeeper Ron Springett foils Northern Ireland's inside-left Jimmy McIlroy's attempt to score by dashing out of goal to gather the ball, in the international soccer match between England and Northern Ireland at Wembley, London, recently.

The result was a 1-1 draw. Bobby Charlton scored for England after 20 minutes, and McIlory saved the game with a goal a few minutes from the end.

Slovakia

Czechoslovak industry suffered great losse during the second World War. The Nazis turned over many factories to war production and mercilessly pundered others. A number were damaged during the fighting or in air raids.

The most pressing post-war tasks were the reconversion of industry to peace-time production, the rebuilding and renovation of factories and the raising of production at least to the pre-war level. These tasks were accomplished by the Two-Year Plan for Economic Reconstruction for the years 1947-48. During 1948 the pre-war level of industrial production was surpassed by 8.5 0/0.

In 1949, the National Assembly approved the first five-year plan for Reconstruction and Further Construction of the Czechoslovak Economy to cover the period 1949-53. This plan set the goal of increasing overall industrial production by 98 0/0 over the 1948 level, with special stress on the development of heavy industry. This plan was fulfilled in both respects. Industrial production rose by 102 0/0.

Facts speak for themselves. This venerable veteran, a truck type Lo 2000, vintage 1934, has covered 1,367,000 miles. No doubt it would have gone on if Daimler-Benz AG had not bought it back at the ripe old age of twenty-five. Of course not every Mercedes-Benz can have such a long working life. However, all Mercedes-Benz vehicles are built to last just as much now as they were then to give many years and many miles of trouble-free, economical service.
