House Of Commons Honours Sir Winston Churchill

LONDON — Tribute followed tribute in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon when members of all parties honoured Sir Winston Churchill, who is giving up his seat after 64 years.

In Parliamentary language, the House "agreed to" an all party motion moved by the Prime Minister, Sir Alec Douglas Home, expressing "the admiration and gratitude of the House to the great World War II leader and Parliamentarian for his service to the nation

After the spoken tributes a committee of leading M.P.s drove to Sir Winston's London home to present him with the Motion, printed on vellum and contained in a silk-lined leather folder.

Sir Alec said: "I move this resolution in the full confidence that it will be supported by every M.P. of this House, and in the knowledge that all who have ever served here with Sir Winston will feel that they share at once in the sadness and in the grandeur of this essentially Parliamentary occasion,

To a silent House, heavy with emotion, Sir Alec went on: "Sadness because Sir Winston's membership of this House is coming to an end, and grandeur because of the honour and grace which the Prime Minister of this country has brought to the House of Commons,

"Not least of the honours of which we are sensible, was his so evidently remained a pleasure to Churchill, until recent days, to attend our sittings.

"Members may imagine how difficult it was to decide adequately to record our thanks for his lifetime of service, but those of all parties who met to consult together were soon agreed that whatever was to be done must be something in keeping with the history of the House, in keeping its character as the representative forum of the nation and as the House of Commons.

"We have chosen by Commons consent a method of trying to convey our thanks adopted by the House on July, 1814, in respect of the Duke of Wellington. I feel that this precedent will give Sir Winston pleasure, appealing to his vivid sense of the sweep of history.

"Today is not the occasion to review the services which he has given to the House and to the nation. For anyone that would be a daunting task."

Sir Alec said that, apart from a short interval, Sir Winston, first elected to the House in 1900, had been a Member throughout the progress of this country.

Sir Alec recalled hearing Sir Winston speak from his place below the gangway in the 1930's, seeing to catch the ear of Parliament and the country, and to give urgency to the preparation for the war which he himself had long foreseen was due to come."

"Then we knew him as Prime Minister in war, exercising the unparalleled authority with which he commanded the House through all adversities and through triumphs of the battle until victory was ours and his."

Sir Alec said: "Sir Winston was a man of the strongest principles and held very strong ideas, but was essentially broad-minded.

"It may be that he found the ultimate wisdom which often eludes lesser men.

"Today suffices to unite in saluting one of the most famous personalities this House has ever known and one of its most faithful servants.

Opposition Tribute

The Leader of the Opposition, Mr. Harold Wilson, said that the terms of the motion would be welcomed by all members. This motion today is unique as the man whom we are honouring his unique. We commemorate on the eve of his retirement his services in peace and war.

Mischievous Humour

Mr. Harold Macmillan, the former Conservative Prime Minister, recalled there had been great administrators in times of peace like Walpole, and great leaders of the nation in times of peril and of gloom like Chatham, Pitt and Lloyd George.

Others have nearly equalled but not surpassed Sir Winston's immense span of Parliamentary and public life—Palmerston, Disraeli and Gladstone.

"There have been no doubt debaters and orators of equal resource and power, but few that gift of pique and rather mischievous humour which so endears him to us.

'Focus On Africa'

George Nyandoro (right), who represents Southern Rhodesian People's Caretaker Council in London, is interviewed by Edward Musala for the BBC African Service series "Focus on Africa".

Mr. Nyandoro had just returned from a three-week visit to Northern Rhodesia, and in London he has been busy lobbying Delegates to the Commonwealth Prime Ministers' Conference.
